Nameri Tiger Reserve

Summary

Nameri is located north of the Brahmaputra in a transition zone between the swampy plains of the Terai and the extremely high biodiversity Eastern Himalaya. The fine extent of moist deciduous and evergreen forest here is contiguous with Pakke Tiger Reserve in Arunachal Pradesh - a vast protected reservoir of excellent birdlife typical of this transitional zone and an abundance of other flora and fauna. Nameri's 350 plus birds include a number of forest species and rarities like White-winged Duck, Ibisbill, Wreathed and Rufous-necked Hornbills, Blue-eared Kingfisher, Blue-naped Pitta, Silver-breasted Broadbill, Slender-billed Oriole, Sultan Tit, White-browed Shortwing and brilliant raptors (including Amur Falcon, Oriental Hobby and Black and Jerdon's Baza) to name but a few. A number of mammals, including Elephant, Tiger and Capped Langur are found here, but are typically difficult to see in these dense forests.

FYI and Guidelines

1. India's northeast, including the areas we visit have sporadic instances of separatist violence. However Nameri is typically safe for tourists, as evidenced by a number of birders who visit this park, without incidents, every year. We will keep you duly informed if local conditions are not safe around our travel dates.
2. Weather & Clothing: Updates closer to the dates of travel
3. Typically birds and animals will be seen at distances where binoculars would be useful for observing them. Although we will have a pair or two binoculars to share among the group, please also carry your own optics for more timely viewing.
4. It is best to wear earthy colored clothing to blend into the environment.
5. A hat and sunblock are highly recommended.
6. Please carry a small torch and insect/mosquito repellents
